

Position statement on the use of animals in research

As a member of the Association of Medical Research Charities (AMRC), Heart Research UK supports the principle of using animals in research when it is necessary to advance understanding and to develop better treatments, although only where there is no alternative.

All AMRC member charities support this principle, as outlined in this AMRC position statement.